Lutheran Medical Center's Nursing Services embrace a collaborative practice model that unites patients, nurses, physicians and staff to provide high-quality, patient-centered care. We are proud of our clinically and culturally competent team approach that meets the needs of our growing community.

Nursing at Lutheran
 A Care-Based Philosophy

The Nursing Department leaders at Lutheran Medical Center believe that a collaborative relationship among nurses, health care team members, the patient and family is essential to quality patient care and to the success of treatment. Combining expertise and clinical skills with compassion, the nursing staff is responsible for coordinating care and advocating for our patients and their families. Our nursing leadership team subscribes to evidence-based clinical care and management practices, and believes that professional accountability and job satisfaction are fostered through effective communication, inclusive governance and decentralized decision-making.

Serving a Diverse Community

Brooklyn is one of the most culturally and ethnically diverse regions in the world, and Lutheran Medical Center works to ensure that our staff reflects this diversity. Drawn from more than 40 countries, our staff speaks more than 126 languages, enabling us to work effectively and competently in a cross-cultural environment.

Working with Professionals

Lutheran Medical Center sees the professional development of employees as paramount to continuing quality patient-centered care. Through programs such as on-site specialty orientations, staff development, professional development, continuing education and tuition reimbursement, the Nursing Department supports and encourages nurses to further their education, explore other clinical opportunities and become certified in nursing specialties.
